Words in writing on packages sent by mail cautioning the receiver "not to open until Christmas" will penalize the packages with letter postage. This is statute law which the department cannot change, but the department has ruled that if the words be printed on the package or on a sticker the postage rate is not changed. As the printing for individuals would cost higher than first-class postage, dealers in gift goods would score a point by providing stickers for customers.

Agitation for making the Volcano of Kilauea region a national park reserve should be kept up until the object is accomplished. Even ordinary forest reserves on the mainland are every summer attracting an increasing number of visitors, who go thither to camp out for health, to indulge in hunting or fishing, and to gratify a bent for nature study. The Hawaii volcanic area offers some of these attractions in addition to a close and safe view of one of the world's greatest active volcanoes. If it were given the distinction of national ownership there would be less likelihood that the region would be left out of itineraries of tours on this side of the globe planned by the great tourist excursion agencies. The Kilauea National Park should be come as great a world attraction as either the Yellowstone or the Yosemite.

Whoever drafted the creed of Kamehameha the Third, which is preserved in the Kawaiahao church deed printed in Saturday's Star, had views in advance of the puritan orthodoxy of his time. The manner in which the theologian of 1842, sixty-eight years ago, "wrote around" dogmas that became stumbling blocks in the "evangelical churches," not for at least a generation later, would indicate that he was a true forerunner of the school of the milder doctrines relating to the fate of mankind after death which today predominate in protestantism. "Everlasting torment" and "infant damnation," for instance, will in vain be searched for in Kamehameha the Third's creed. Hawaii scores again for being in advance of the times.

The Mid-Pacific Magazine is about to appear simultaneously in London, Boston, New York, San Francisco and Sydney. This new Hawaiian magazine edited and published by Alexander Hume Ford is a Honolulu product pure and simple from start to finish, and it has the best aloha of The Star. It is something to be proud of that on this little pinpoint in the Pacific is published a 164-page monthly magazine that vies with the best. There is probably no magazine in the world that publishes more half-tone cuts than does the Mid-Pacific, and no mainland or European magazine uses better paper. From beginning to end the magazine carries forth to the outside world interesting stories, splendidly illustrated, of things that happen in Pacific lands. It is interesting to the home reader because it tells of all the countries of the Pacific. As promotion literature for foreign reading the Mid-Pacific Magazine will stand the best advertisement that Hawaii or any other land has ever put forth. All success to Alexander Hume Ford and his ambitious effort to bring Hawaii before the readers of every English-speaking country on the globe.

OCTOBER FOREIGN TRADE.

Foreign trade during October showed a decrease in importation of manufacturers' materials, but increased importation of foodstuffs; and on the export side an increased outward movement of both manufacturers and manufacturers' materials, and a further decline in foodstuffs. The October statement of the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, naming the principal articles imported and exported during the month and ten months, shows for October, 1910, decreased values for india rubber, hides and skins, wool, fibers, leaf tobacco, lumber, copper ore and pulp wood brought into the United States; and increased values for sugar, coffee, tea, fruits and other foodstuffs imported. On the export side an increase is shown in the value of agricultural implements, builder's hardware, boots and shoes, sheets and plates of steel, automobiles, scientific instruments, typewriters, naphthalene, electrical machinery, metal working machinery, patent medicines, books, structural iron and steel, copper, lumber and naval stores exported; also of unmanufactured cotton, coal and fertilizers; while of foodstuffs, flour, wheat, lard, bacon, oleo oil, fresh beef and food animals show a decline.

From a table showing the principal articles imported and exported the following data of especial interest to Hawaii is compiled:

Imports of sugar for October were five and a half million dollars against three and six-tenths millions for October last year. For the ten months ending October the imports of sugar were 108 1-2 millions against 84.3 millions for the corresponding period last year.

Raw coffee imports for the ten months of 1910 were 53.5 million dollars, against 64.1 millions in 1909.

Bananas were imported to the value of 10.8 million dollars in the ten months of 1910, being almost even with 1909 when the value was 10.7 millions.

Raw cotton imports ten months this year were the same as the like period last year, twelve million dollars, and for October of each year also broke even at four millions.

There was an immense increase in imports of crude india rubber, those for the ten months of 1910 having been 85.4 million dollars, as compared with 58.5 millions in the same period last year.

These figures are mostly very encouraging for some of Hawaii's rising new industries.

The Poet Philosopher

Each day the peril hunters find some new and frightful bugaboo; it is not strange the public mind is often showing shades of blue. We're being robbed by ruthless hands, of all our rights we are bereft; and heartless plutocratic bands are preying on us right and left. They're stealing all our wood and coal, they've burglarized our water-sites; by day they put us in the hole and rob our chickenscoops by night. The druggists sell us poisoned dope, the grocers sell us wooden beans; alas! there is no ray of hope—for those who read the magazines! And still we seem to jog along, in quite an easy, well-feld way; we wouldn't know that things are wrong, but that we're told so every day. We seem to throw in three square meals, and have a place to seek repose; and when we need some extra wheels we do not have to pawn our clothes. So let the peril hunters scream, and write their hot and throbbing stuff; prosperity may be a dream, but while it lasts it's good enough.
